

My Educational Journey

I grew up in Bluefields, a city on the Caribbean Coast of Nicaragua. I lived in Guadalajara, México for 10 years, during the 90's. I obtained my bachelor's degree in Information Systems at the University of Guadalajara. After graduation I began my career working for the UdeG as a Computer Programmer and Literacy Teacher. We moved to Texas in December of 2000. I, for the first time, and my husband after several years of living in Central America and Mexico.

I obtained my teaching Secondary Education Certification in Computer Science from Texas State University. A year after, I added the Spanish teacher endorsement. I am also an ESL certified.

I worked for 3 years as a Math and Computer teacher at Taylor Middle School in Taylor Texas. I also worked for 3 years at Lexington High School in Lexington Texas as a Technology, Business and Spanish teacher. I am currently employed at Manor New Technology High School as a Technology Application teacher. My classes include: Graphic Design, Business Image Management and Multimedia (BIMM), Web Design and Video Game Design.

In December 2008 I obtained my Master degree in Educational technology at Texas State University- San Marcos. My passion is teaching, so even though I obtained my master degree in educational technology, I will continue my career as a secondary classroom teacher. To learn more about me and my EdTech journey, you may visit the web site: <http://elenorharden.pbworks.com>.

My goal for the near future is to start my Ph. D in Instructional Technology at the University of Texas at Austin. As long as there is life, there is hope; hope that I can achieve what I put my mind to.

“The future belongs to those who believe in the beauty of their dreams”

Eleanor Roosevelt